Infectious Tracheobronchitis Statement

Infectious tracheobronchitis (also known as Bordetella or "kennel cough") is a highly contagious airborne disease of dogs. It is similar to whooping cough in humans and generally runs its course in 10-14 days; some cases can be more severe and have a prolonged recovery. The disease is caused by a combination of viruses and bacteria. A combination vaccine is available for prevention and in some instances prevents carrier dogs from spreading the disease. Dogs showing signs of the disease or recently recovered will not be allowed to board with us until two weeks after the symptoms have stopped. Owner understands that even vaccinated dogs can sometimes contract infectious tracheobronchitis, although usually the symptoms are less severe than would be in an unvaccinated dog. Should the owner's dog contract infectious tracheobronchitis during or after their stay, Waverly Animal Hospital, Boarding & Grooming will not be held responsible as this is an inherent risk of any kennel environment.
